Allensville, PA – MCS Bank recently recognized John Olnick for marking a milestone, his 50th year in banking.

Olnick began his career in 1966 as a teller with the First National Bank of Lewistown. His career has included various roles in operations and lending at several local financial institutions. His career includes stops at Reedsville National Bank and Russell National Bank. Olnick experienced the merger that combined Russell National Bank and Peoples National Bank into Omega Bank and later the merger of Omega Bank into present-day First National Bank of PA.

Olnick joined MCS Bank as a loan officer in 2007, but currently works, in semi-retirement, as a part-time teller at the Allensville branch. Olnick said he intends to remain in banking as long as the work remains fun. According to Olnick, “It is still fun!”.
